What you can do with Weaviate

Beyond search, Weaviate's next-gen vector database can power a wide range of innovative apps.

Vector Search

Perform lightning-fast pure vector similarity search over raw vectors or data objects, even with filters.

Hybrid Search

Combine keyword-based search with vector search techniques for state-of-the-art results.

Generative Search

Use any generative model in combination with your data, for example to do Q&A over your dataset.

```
Get { Publication( nearText: {
      concepts: ["fashion"]
    limit: 1
  ) {
    name _additional { certainty distance
      vector
    }
  }
```

The screenshot shows a mobile application interface with a dark blue header. Below the header, there is a code block representing a GraphQL query for a vector search. The query retrieves a single publication based on a concept ('fashion') and includes additional fields for certainty, distance, and the vector itself. At the bottom of the screen, there is a green button labeled 'Try Vector Search'.
